SPORTING NEWS.

BASE BALL OUTLOOK FOR 1907.

The football fever having about died away, and Santa Claus having made a clean sweep, the lovers of outdoor sport can find time now to sit by a warm fire, perchance the coal train comes in on time, and grow reminiscent over past battles and discuss the approaching season.

What is engaging the attention of the public most now is the prospects in the baseball world. The fans know that it takes time to arrange for baseball games as well as for other athletic sports and they are asking on every hand what efforts, if any, are being put forth to furnish the patrons the class of baseball they want to spend their money to see. True, Johnny Dobbs is hustling, but Dobbs is a white man, and as is the case every year before the season approaches a great deal of speculation is indulged in, and never a winter passes that some one seeking a little cheap notoriety does not bob up with something concerning a new park for the league team, and they as a rule are so hard pressed for gray matter from which to condense thoughts that they are compelled to draw on their "niggerphobia." Some little 2x4 has suggested that the Nashville league have a new park and gives as his reason for such a need that the present site is surrounded with Negroes, when, as is well known, the present site is bounded on the North by Haury's saloon, on the east by Howe's ice factory, and on the south by Harriman's Nashville Terminals and the spring house, and on the west by nothing but a bottom full of weeds and gnats. But this cheap stuff issued by the would-be should put the Negroes to thinking.

For years they have been paying into the coffers of the owners of the sinkhole known as Athletic Park their hard-earned money, and annually they are told that they are not wanted. They must not even give their lungs too much exercise, it makes no difference what happens, unless Bill Bohannon or wee Jansing makes a sensational stunt. But if the Hon. Napier or the Rev. Griggs, or forsooth the Dr. Washington says something praiseworthy concerning the ability of the Negro as an athlete or a man they threaten to close the gates of the sacred swamp against the sons of Ham.

Well, why shouldn't they? The germ-producing locality belongs to them.

A cure for all these ills is for the Negroes to secure a park of their own and on high ground that does not require a fire to be built to dry out. It would be a paying investment. Then after the park is fitted up, put a hustling man to work to secure a ball team that would be able to cope with other teams throughout the country. Begin now so as to be ready when the season opens. The fans will pay for the right kind of ball playing.

GANS-BRITT.

Jimmy Britt, the pride of the Pacific slope, will have a chance to again retrieve his lost honors. On March 17, at Taponah, Nev., he will be pitted against Joe Gans, the champion lightweight of the world. The Baltimore fighter seems to be at his best now and all followers of the ring believe he will be able to defend his title against Britt. The last time these men met Britt saved himself from a clean knockout by fouling Gans when the champion had him at the last stage of endurance. Although many strange things have happened in the fist arena the opinion is that if Gans fights he will win.

ED. MARSHALL MAKES ALL-WESTERN ELEVEN.

Ed. Marshall, the big Minnesota end, could not be denied a place on the all-western football eleven for 1906, although accused of being a dirty player. Perhaps he would not have made the first team at Minnesota had he not contained some of the roughness that is characteristic of all elevens from Gopher State university. Marshall, despite this charge, was entitled to a place on the All-American eleven, and in 1905 and 1906 was given a place on the second team by Walter Camp, who seems to be prejudiced to all sections except the East. Not a single man in the South was good enough for a place, although Vanderbilt defeated the Indians 4 to 0.

Mrs. Adella Mills, the popular Jefferson street grocer, is doing a thriving business. Mrs. Mills is always alert. She tries to please her customers by keeping the best the market affords on hand.

A SOLDIER'S OPINION

Of the Recent Excitement at Brownsville, Texas.

Mr. Editor:

One full grown wolf will stampede 10,000 sheep, while if the same herd should have come in contact with the wolf while it was in its infancy they would have disdainfully trampled it under their feet.

Such seems to have been the situation at Brownsville, Texas, during the recent excitement, which resulted in the killing of one white man, and the wounding of another which was supposed to have been done by some unknown member of the 25th infantry, stationed at Fort Brown, Texas.

I have before me clippings of the San Antonio Daily Express, from the 15th to the 20th of August, inclusive, all of which contain appeals from the citizens of Brownsville, to everybody, from the president of the United States to the town "cop," saying: "Our women and children are terrorized, and our men in constant alarm and fearfulness; please remove Negro troops and replace them by white troops; send state troops; do something right away, for we are scared to death," or words to that effect.

Now, Mr. Editor, no one not a true hearted American colored soldier can realize the situation of affairs at Brownsville. The writer was stationed down there about ten months in 1899, and is well acquainted with the sentiment of its people.

The majority of the inhabitants of that section, are a class that think a colored man is not good enough to wear the uniform of a United States soldier—yea, not good enough even to wear the skin of a dog.

They snoot at a colored soldier on the sidewalk and bar him from their saloons, resorts, and places of amusement.

Why, when I was down there, one Sunday I thought I would go down to Point Isabella, on the Bay, to spend the day. So in company with a young lady I went down to the depot and purchased two tickets (taking advantage of the excursion rates then offered), boarded the train (which was only little better than walking), went into the car and took a seat. When the train started, one of the so-called "Texas Rangers" came up to me and told me I was in the wrong place. I said, "No,

I guess not; I just read your law, and it says the Negro and white passengers will not ride in the same coach except on excursions." He replied, "Don't make any difference, you get out of here; you are too smart any way; I will break this gun over your head if you say much," the meantime menacing me with a six-shooter, of the most improved villainous pattern and caliber. Well I obeyed his orders because I was alone and could not help myself. I knew that I was being treated wrong, but he held a "Royal flush," and I only had a "four-card bob," and I knew I could not "bluff" him.

A colored man who has the disposition of a toad frog (I mean one who can stand to be beaten on the back and puff up and take it), is all right; he can stay in that country. But those who feel hot blood running through their veins, and who are proudly and creditably wearing the uniform of a United States soldier; standing ready to protect and defend the American flag, against any enemy whomsoever, to obey the orders of the president of the United States and the orders of the officer appointed over them (which they have always done with pride and honor), cannot stay down there in peace with honor. The people do not want them either because they will probably not be able to carry out their favorite sport, hanging a colored man to a limb, or tarring and feathering him and burning him at the stake with out trial, while the colored soldiers are stationed there.

The majority of the old-settlers in southwest Texas are bandits, original members of the Ku-Klux-Klan, murderers and thieves, who have sneaked down in that almost uncivilized part of the United States in the early days and mixed up with the Mexicans in order to escape the eagle talons of a pursuing and outraged justice.

Very respectfully,
VANCE H. MARCHBANKS,
Squadron Sergeant Major 10th Cavalry.

Fort Washakie, Wyoming.
